A BOY'S SICKNESS.

A serious phase of disease is that which attacks a boy on a day when he particularly objects to going to school. He tells his mother, with the confident frankness peculiar to youth, that he does not feel well this morning. He doesn't know what it is, but he is lame in the joints, his head aches, and he doesn't feel a bit good. He cowers about slowly, openly refuses food, looks dejected, negligent, unhappy. Quite frequently he can be heard to sigh. But in all his pain he never forgets the clock. As time advances to the hour which marks school time, his symptoms increase. He doesn't say a word about school to his mother. He feels too dreadful, perhaps, to talk of such things. He is certainly in a bad way. His sighs increase as the dreaded time approaches, and the physical symptoms of decay become more and more manifest. But the greatest suffering he endures mentally. Fifteen minutes of that time, and nothing has been said to him about getting ready. He wants to believe he is all right; because that is the prompting of hope which is strong in the youthful breast; but yet he refuses to believe he is, because he fears that reaction of disappointment. Every time he hears his mother's voice he is startled, and every time he detects her looking toward him he feels his heart sink within him. It is a hard thing, indeed, to appear outwardly languid, listless and drooping when inwardly one is a roaring furnace of agony. But he does it and does it admirably. It now lacks five minutes of the quarter. Still she says nothing. His nervousness is almost maddening. Four minutes, three minutes, two minutes. One minute. Still she makes no sign. Will his reason forsake him? It is the quarter. Now he should start, according to custom. One would think he had every encouragement now, but he knows that at even five minutes later he can make school by hurrying. The agony of the suspense becomes exquisite. He trembles all over and he cannot help it. His hair is moist with perspiration. It seems as if he would give up everything and sink into the grave if he could but know the result. How slowly the clock moves. It stares at him with exasperating slowness. The ten minutes are reached. He breathes easier. Not a word has been said to him about school. His mother sees that he is too ill to go, and she sympathizes with him. Heaven bless her. Did ever a boy have such a noble, good mother as this! Visions of sunny fields and shady woods and running streams unfold before him, stirring the very depths of his soul, and filling his eyes with tears of gladness.

"Like a great shock the beautiful picture falls away and he is shot from the pinnacle of hope into the abyss of despair. There is no mistaking the voice. 'Mercy sakes! here you are not ready for school. Come, start your boots.' 'I do not feel well enough to go to school,' he whines, hardly realizing the dreadful change that has come upon him with such blighting force and swiftness. 'I guess you ain't dying quite,' is the heartless reply. 'And if you ain't at school you will go galloping over the neighborhood. Hurry, I tell you.' 'But it is almost 9 o'clock, and I'll be late,' he protests in desperation. 'Late,' she repeats, looking at the clock. 'You have plenty of time. The clock is nearly a quarter of an hour fast.' Merciful heavens! He goes down before the terrible blow in a flash. A quarter of an hour fast! Bleeding at every pore of his heart, stunned by a shock which was as terrible as unexpected, he crawls inside of his jacket and under his hat, and starts on his way in a dazed manner that is pitiful to behold.—Danbury News.

According to an English authority, redness of the nose in both sexes is produced by inattention to the common rules for preserving health. With men, the bottle is the predisposing cause; with women, and especially the young, tight lacing. An unnatural pressure on the waist and chest obstructs the circulation, and causes stagnation of the blood in that prominent and important feature, the nose.

"Sickness has impaired his health," said a Wisconsin editor, which led a rival to remark: "Yes, it often has that effect."

Exemption from care is not happiness; on the contrary, a certain degree of care is essential to promote enjoyment.

Women in politics! Sugar in slops! It may improve the slops; but, oh! what a waste of sugar!

As a rule, boys do not like to assist in doing any sort of housework, with the single exception of picking over mince.

CURES EFFECTED BY LAUGHTER.

Laughter has often dissipated disease and preserved life by a sudden effort of nature. We are told that the great Erasmus laughed so heartily at a satirical remark that he broke a tumor and recovered his health. Jonhart gives two similar instances. A patient being very low, the physician, who had ordered a dose of rhubarb, countermanded it, and the medicine was left on the table. A monkey in the room, jumping up, discovered the goblet, and having tasted, made a terrible grimace. Again putting only his tongue to it, he perceived some sweetness of the dissolved manna, while the rhubarb had sunk to the bottom. Thus emboldened, he swallowed the whole, but found it such a nauseous potion that, after many strange and fantastic grimaces, he ground his teeth in agony, and in a violent fury threw the goblet on the floor. The whole affair was so ludicrous that the sick man burst into repeated peals of laughter, and the recovery of cheerfulness led to health. Another case recorded is that two individuals were lying in one room very sick—one with brain fever and the other with an aggravated case of mumps. They were so low that watchers were needed every night, and it was thought doubtful if the one-sick of fever would recover. A person was engaged to watch one night, his duty being to wake the nurse whenever it became necessary to take the medicine. In the course of the night both watcher and nurse fell asleep. The man with the mumps lay watching the clock, and saw that it was time to give the fever patient his potion. He was unable to speak loud or to move any portion of his body except his arms; but seizing a pillow he managed to strike the watcher in the face with it. This suddenly awakened the watcher spring from his seat, falling to the floor and awakening both the nurse and fever patient. The incident struck both the sick men as very ludicrous, and they laughed most heartily at it for fifteen or twenty minutes. When the doctor came in the morning he found his patients badly improved; said he had never known so sudden a turn for the better; and they both got well.

A very popular but blind Count lives in the Camp Elysees. Being witty and musical, his society is much sought after. He left Paris three months ago, and on his return called upon a fashionable Marchioness, who was preparing to go to a fashionable ball. She begged to be excused, but as he had an important message to deliver, he was shown in, and, being blind, was asked to a chair in her boudoir. Gossip ensued, and during all the time the Marchioness, assisted by her maid, executed the mysteries of her toilet. Being ready to descend to her carriage, the Count stated that he had been absent in London, had undergone a successful operation for catarrh, and could now see as well as the Marchioness herself. The latter shrieked, and jumped into her carriage without even an au revoir to her unwelcome visitor.

A financier was receiving at dinner a distinguished guest renowned for his taste, and in the course of conversation the latter spoke of having dined the day before at a house where the host had "entertained the company with some excellent epigrams." The financier's jealousy was excited. He rang for his cook, and, in the presence of his distinguished guest, asked him whether he could make epigrams, and, if so, how it happened that he had hitherto concealed his talents. Without allowing the astonished cook to reply, the financier ordered him in a peremptory manner to serve up a dish of epigrams at the next day's dinner, and at the same time invited the distinguished guest to come and see whether they were as good as those of which he had just spoken.

Brother Moody, in one of his Chicago meetings, asked all to rise who would promise not to offer strong drinks to callers on New Year's Day. Nearly the whole congregation stood up.

The old story.—A laborer, aged 19, has been tried at Norwich, England, for a dangerous assault upon his wife's mother. Penal servitude for seven years.

A lady in the country, who recently wrote to a friend to send her a book of riddles and conundrums, received by return mail Greg's "Enigma of Life."

The largest sail in the world has been made in Dublin. It is rectangular, and measures 180 feet by 80. It is to be used in raising sunken vessels.

There was not one indictment found all last year, in Maine, for any capital offense.

Our poor relatives are those who are sick and of no use to us.

TRACKED FOR THIRTY YEARS.

A week ago Redmond F. Kelly, a pauper, in the Kings County Almshouse, and was buried in Potter's Field. Flying from Ireland at the age of twenty-one to escape arrest for the perpetration of a crime that created the greatest excitement, he sought safety from the English detectives in this city. Tracked to his hiding place, he hastened to the mines in Pennsylvania. Here he remained a short time, the officers having again discovered his whereabouts. From that time until within a few years—for over thirty years—he was chased all over the country. Soon after taking up his abode in the Fourteenth Ward of Williamsburgh Kelly was compelled to go to the poorhouse.

According to the stories told by his friends, Kelly was the man who shot the agent Bell in county Cavan. "We were all together," said one of them, yesterday, an ex-Ribbonman, "preparing to draw lots to do this work. Word had come to us in Tyrone from Cavan. Kelly was one of the number, a pale, stout handy boy, scarcely twenty-one years old. As the slips of paper were about to be drawn, he steps out and says, 'I'll do the job if you people will see to getting me out of the country; I'm young and can better take the chances. Off he started, and the first thing we know Bell was shot dead in his wagon as he was driving home from church. The whole country was in an uproar. Kelly, as he told me after shooting his man, dropped the pistol in the road, and quietly walked away. He came to this country followed by detectives. There is not a person who was in the United Kingdom at the time but knew of the shooting, but no one knew who committed the act, except party men. Now that he is safe, sure it is no harm. A good man, one who sacrificed his life to avenge the wrong done his country people by the tyrant Bell, has passed away with Redmond F. Kelly."

The agent Bell was the most hated man that ever evicted a widow or tore the thatch from the roof of a small tenement.—N. Y. Sun.

FLOATING GARDENS.—In the beautiful garden of Cashmere, among the Himlayan Mountains, lies a lovely lake called Dal. Floating about on its surface, sometimes carried from one end to the other, are numerous small islands, on which grow the fairest cucumbers and most luscious melons known. The way in which these floating gardens are made is very curious. All about the main shores of the lake grow quantities of reeds, sedges and water lilies. When these grow very thickly together, people cut them from the roots which hold them near the shore. The leaves of the plants are then spread over the stems, making a sort of trestle-work to support the soil with which it is next to be covered. After this has been done, the seeds are planted and the floating garden is left to care for itself, until the fruits are ready for picking.—St. Nicholas.

Engagement rings are now made like bracelets to close round the finger with a spring clasp. They are no longer made plain, but embody various neat and chaste designs. About the most elaborate and appropriate is one that simulates a rat trap, and goes shut for keeps when a finger is stuck into it.—Hank Eye.

The Water Witch, the only English man-of-war not propelled by paddle or screw, but by means of the recoil of two water jets projected at high velocity from nozzles at the ship's side, made seven knots an hour at her last trial trip. The system has important advantages over the old ones, and the promoters are sanguine of ultimate success.

Better it is, toward the right conduct of life, to consider what will be the end of a thing than what is the beginning of it—for what promises fair at first may prove ill, and what seems at first a disadvantage may prove advantageous.

There is discipline in the Russian army. When an officer appears on the scene, though a mile off, every soldier takes off his hat and commences making the military salute.

Members of the Baptist Church in Lexington, Ky., publish a card in which they say that their pastor is "a thief and a robber."

A big snow bank in Rutland, Vt., was carried into the boiler room of a factory and melted, in order to find a valuable thing that a woman had lost in it.

Gen. Leslie Coombs of Kentucky has just married a woman eighty-five years old.

Sankey protests against his revival tunes being arranged for waltzes and quadrilles.

COLORING HUMAN HAIR BY EATING EGGS.

The much-vaunted question, How to get gold hair, is solved at last. While the Germans shrink from being held a fair-haired Nation, who knows, but the sufferers, what other Nations have gone through to win the hair despised by Prussia? Ladies have borne unheard of tortures in pursuit of this fictitious gold. One who had to be turned round in the sun for hours during the process, bore with stoic fortitude the terrible headaches involved each week, nor ever complained of what she had to pay, though after all, she was scarcely ever electro-plated. Some run other risks, in robbing Teuton corpses of their long fair locks; and all is ineffectual while eyes and skin remain to give the lie to hair. Now, no more dyes, migraines or wigs will be necessary. Everybody may sport "glad gold hair"—nay, blue eyes, too, and snowy skins. All you have to do is to go and live on an island and eat penguins eggs—and the more you eat the fairer you will get. None need deplore, for hair too dark to turn to gold turns red, and red hair, being more the rage than flaxen, tant mieux. The tale in question is one of the Crozet group, on which the survivors of the unfortunate Strathmore were wrecked last year, and only rescued after six months' duration. They had little to eat but penguin eggs (and doubtless the eggs without the island would be of no avail) but the slight inconvenience of a sameness in food would be readily encountered by the votaries of fashion. One of the survivors writes: "The eggs did every one a great deal of good. * * * A most remarkable thing was that every one had fair skins and light hair, dark faces and hair being quite changed, black hair turning brown or red, and fairer people quite flaxen." If some enterprising Englishman does not immediately set up a hotel on this enchanted spot, we shall never give John Bull credit for knowing how to make his fortune.—London Echo.

Christmas morning they stood before the altar and the music of the marriage bells was sweeter to them than the music of the spheres. Christmas morning, four years later, a bald-headed man jumped out of bed, half-distracted, and wanted to know why his wife was such an infernal fool as to put a Christmas horn in that boy's stocking.—Brooklyn Argus.

English papers tell of a sea captain, recently arrived from Bombay, who saved his vessel during a hurricane of two days' duration by filling two canvas bags with oil, puncturing each slightly, and towing them astern. The oil spread slowly over the water. The huge wave spent their force at some distance, and around the ship was a large space of calm water.

The French army is Democratic to core. The young Duc de Z., a volunteer in a cavalry regiment, was sweeping the barrack room the other day, when his corporal rebuked him for the manner in which he did his work, and asked him if he fancied that he was still sweeping his drawing room.

A gigantic serpent from India, the Python vivitatus, which was on exhibition in Berlin a few days, has been sold by its owner to an Englishman for $750. Its length is reported as twenty-two feet and it swallowed twelve large rabbits at one meal.

The Paris police have just been armed with a small but powerful little lamp, which they conceal under the overcoat, but by whose aid they can instantly throw a blinding light on objects and identify offenders.

The British Government has just closed a correspondence with foreign powers on the subject of offering mutual salutes. A code will be issued which will in future save much waste of powder and money.

Brother Moody severely condemns "the idea of allowing the prettiest girl to be kissed for twenty-five cents, and of having our daughters sell cigars to young men."

All papas and mammas have exactly that sight which distinguishes objects at a distance clearly, while they need spectacles to see those under their very noses.

It is said that wire netting spread on the roof of a building is a better protection against lightning than upright rods.

Nearly all of the United States Senators are compelled to wear glasses when reading.

Gen. Crook says that Indians make the best cavalrymen in the world.

The culinary art forms a part of the education of women in Germany. The well-to-do tradesman, like the mechanic, takes pride in seeing his daughters good housekeepers. To affect this object, the girl, on leaving school, which she does when about fourteen years of age, goes through the ceremony of confirmation, and then is placed by her parents with a country gentleman, or in a large family, where she remains one or two years, filling what may almost be termed the post of servant, and doing the work of one. This is looked upon as an apprenticeship to domestic economy. She differs from a servant, however, in this—she receives no wages; on the contrary, her parents often pay for the care taken of her, as well as her clothing.

This is the first step in her education as housekeeper. She next passes, on the same conditions, into the kitchen of a rich, private family, or into that of a hotel of good repute. Here she has control of the expenditures of the servants employed in it, and assists personally in the cooking, but is always addressed as Fräulein, or miss, and is treated by the family with deference and consideration. Many daughters of rich families receive similar training, with this difference, however, that they receive it in a princely mansion or a royal residence. There is a reigning queen in Germany at the present time, who was trained in this way. Consequently the women in Germany are perfect models of economy.

FROZEN BITS FOR HORSES.—The following, from the Boston Herald, should be heeded by those having charge of horses in the winter: "Let any one who has care of a horse these cold, frosty mornings deliberately grasp in his hand a piece of iron; indeed, let him touch it to the tip of his tongue, and then let him thrust the bit into the mouth of his horse, if he has the heart to do it. The horse is an animal of nervous organization. His mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues. The temperature of the blood is the same as in the human being, and, as in man, the mouth is the warmest part of the body. Imagine, we repeat, the irritation that would be caused the human, and consider that, if not to the same degree, still the suffering to the animal is very great. And it is not a momentary pain. Food is eaten with difficulty, and the irritation repeated day after day causes loss of appetite and loss of strength. Many a horse has become worthless from no other cause than this. Before India rubber bits were to be had I myself used a bit covered with leather, and on no account would have dispensed with it in freezing weather."

A young woman recently answered an advertisement for a dining-room girl, and the lady of the house seemed pleased with her. But before engaging her there were some questions to ask—"Suppose," said the lady, "now only suppose, understand, that you were carrying a piece of steak from the kitchen, and by accident should let it slip from the plate to the floor, what would you do in such a case?" The girl looked the lady square in the eye for a moment before asking, "Is it a private family, or are there boarders?" "Boarders," answered the lady. "Pick it up and put it back on the plate," firmly replied the girl. She was engaged.

The negroes in the South, says a correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, calculate time entirely from the year of emancipation. If you ask the date of any event, they will tell you it occurred so many years before "freedom," or so many years since "freedom." If you ask the age of a child the mother or father may tell you, "it was born two years before freedom," or "it was born just three years and two months after freedom." The use of the word "Master," or "Mama," or "Mama," as it was variously pronounced by the slaves, has passed away. For it has been substituted the comprehensive term "boss."

About 1,200 Icelanders have immigrated into Manitoba and settled on Lake Winnipeg at a place which they call Gimli. The Colonial Government has given them land and helped them to get over. They are very unskilful, however, this winter, numbers of them, especially children, having died of small-pox.

Capt. Boynton has successfully accomplished his greatest voyage in his life-saving dress by swimming down the River Po from Castel Dorn to Ferrara, 280 miles, in 96 hours, without a break.

A four-legged girl in Du Quoin, Ill., advertises for an engagement with a side show.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretions, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.
DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500
for every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading on dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage; remember you are approaching the last. If you are lingering on the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the Doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond medical skill, or before grim death hur-

Pianos!

First Premium over all American and Foreign Manufacturers.

Copy of a Telegram received by Sherman & Hyde:

New York, Sept. 29th, 1876—Received the highest award for sym-phetic, pure, and rich tone, combined with greatest power, as shown in the three styles—Grand, Square, and Upright Pianos—which show intelligence and solidity in their construction, a pliant and easy touch, which at the same time answers promptly to its requirements, together with excellence of workmanship.

A. WEBER.

Never before in the history of piano forte manufacture has an instrument risen so rapidly in popular favor.

Its intrinsic merit and decided superiority over all others has caused every musician and artist of note to adopt and recommend it.

Nilsson says, "I shall take every opportunity to recommend and praise your instruments."

Miss Kellogg says, "Your Pianos are my choice for the concert room and my own house."

Lucca says, "Your uprights are extraordinary instruments, and deserve their great popularity."

Patti says, "I have used the Pianos of every celebrated maker, but give yours the preference over all."

Strauss says, "Your Pianos astonish me. I have never seen any Pianos which equal yours."

Wells says, "Madame Parpa called your Pianos the finest in the United States. I fully endorse that opinion. They have no rival."
